Meta-analysis is a form of systematic literature review that involves thoroughly conducted statistical/regression analysis of numerically expressed experimental results and empirical evidence. Meta-analysis is widely used in various fields across disciplines. The seminar provides an opportunity to learn how meta-analysis is applicable for young researchers in any field, and to find a good application to the wage study in China and Eastern Europe.

This seminar is supported by JSPS KAKENHI (JP19KK0036).
